Dear Colleague,

Aboriginal communities in Canada are faced with many opportunities in the area of natural resource development. The conditions of the market in the north and access to potential resources suggest the possibility for long-term production in natural gas. There are however many considerations to evaluate before entering into oil and gas development projects. This two-day conference by Insight Information Co. is aimed at providing information and strategies that will enable communities in Alberta and the Northwest Territories to work with government and industry in creating oil and gas development projects with common economic objectives.

You will hear from government and community leaders on current initiatives in Alberta to maximize Aboriginal participation in oil and gas development. Legal and industry experts will present you with the key risk factors you need to consider in assessing potential ventures. A closer look at the history and progress of oil and gas projects in the NWT and the Arctic will provide a clearer understanding of the information required, the potential obstacles that arise and the strategies needed to bring communities, government and industry together.

Attendees will be afforded the opportunity to address their questions to the speakers in each session and informally during breaks. The conference materials, prepared by the speakers, will also prove to be a valuable resource for attendees after the conference.

This is a unique and comprehensive event that you cannot afford to miss. I look forward to meeting you in person!

Sincerely,

Ameera Khoja
Conference Developer
Insight Information Co.

Delegates will receive a set of original materials that will serve as a valuable reference source after the program.
